A MESSAGE FROM RABBI NEIL

A Summer of Change

As Cantor Lianna prepares to move on from our community in June, I want to take this opportunity to thank her for the last three years – for the wonderful music, for the family services, for the new Tashlich ceremony, for holding the community through my Sabbatical, for her unique clergy perspective and ideas, for new ways of approaching our tradition, and for so much more. Working with her has been a pleasure and while we are sad to see her leave Santa Fe, we're very excited for her own professional and personal journey in Chicago.

As we look to the summer and beyond, we're very lucky that Brian Serle will be our new Director of Education, and you'll hear more about him soon. In terms of services, both Aaron Wolf and Rabbi Jenny will be providing occasional musical accompaniment, supporting our wondrous Fred Milder who so masterfully provides instrumentation every week. In terms of Friday evening services, you'll also see occasional lay-led services and guest sermons, and if there is a fifth Friday night service in a month, that will be a Reflective and Meditative service, a spiritual format which has proven to be popular since they started a year ago.

Shabbat mornings will see the most dramatic development, from the return of the explanatory service to a monthly service led by and for specific religious school classes. Lay leaders will also help once a month and if there is a fifth Shabbat morning service in a month, that will be dedicated to new liturgy, such as poems and prayers written by members, or even exploring new forms of traditional prayers that meet the needs of our ever-changing community.

Before all of that, we invite you to join us for our Tikkun Leil Shavuot on June 11th, which is one of our largest educational gatherings of the year. Shavuot itself is a wonderful example of Judaism developing as times change - originally a harvest festival, it was given a new focus as the celebration of the giving of Torah on Sinai, so instead of gleaning our crops by day, we study long into the night (and host our annual cheesecake competition!). This year, the theme of our Tikkun Leil is Jewish Boundaries. We will look at how Judaism originally defined and enforced certain boundaries – legal, gender, physical, spiritual, identity – and those boundaries have shifted over time. It promises to be a fascinating evening of learning for people of all levels of Jewish knowledge, and I really hope that you can join us in-person or online.

-Rabbi Neil

A MESSAGE FROM CANTOR LIANNA

Pirkei Avot, the tractate of the Mishnah dealing with the Wisdom of our Ancestors, opens by saying, “Moses received the Torah at Sinai and transmitted it to Joshua, Joshua to the elders, and the elders to the prophets, and the prophets to the Members of the Great Assembly.”

This verse establishes Shalshet haKabbalah, the chain of tradition, that links Jews and Jewish knowledge from time immemorial. Rav Joseph Soloveichik explains this further, saying “Hands are linked; generations are united. One society encompasses past, present and future.” Whenever I pray, I see my prayers connecting me to all the people before me, all the people who will come after me, and all the people around the world who are connecting to these same prayers, even if we might all do them differently or understand them differently. I love being a Jewish educator because I can empower people to create links for themselves to the chain of tradition; to find their own role in their community, and to learn more about their Jewish self.

The religious school recently traveled to Las Vegas, New Mexico, to learn about the history of Jewish New Mexico and the people that came before them and those who are working to continue the community today. At Montefiore Cemetery, which is the oldest Jewish cemetery in New Mexico and dates back to 1883, we buried unusable prayer books and bibles, in an ancient Jewish practice known as geniza.

As we interred the books, I shared the words above from Pirkei Avot 1:1. The moment resonated not only with the traditions that were passed into and through the books, which were so well loved and used that they couldn’t serve us any more, but also with the continuity of the next generation of New Mexico’s Jewish community standing in the place where the first generation of New Mexico’s Jewish community was buried.

As my departure from TBS approaches, I am feeling many complicated emotions. I am excited about taking the next steps in my career and pursuing a new opportunity, and I will also miss many people and places here in Santa Fe. But I feel good knowing that TBS’ unique chain of tradition began many years before I got here, and will continue to be here many years after I leave. I know that it is in good hands, and that my work has strengthened and added links to the chain.

Thank you for allowing me to link my hands with yours for the last three years - we are now and forever part of a united chain of tradition. I am grateful to have been part of the TBS story and that TBS will forever be part of my story. Please make sure to come say goodbye at an Ice Cream Social on Sunday, June 2nd, from 3:00-5:00, at Cowgirl from 6:00-8:00 on Tuesday, June 4th, or at my final Kabbalat Shabbat service on Friday, June 7th at 6:30 PM. And if you find yourself in Chicago’s North Shore, please feel free to reach out!

-Cantor Lianna

A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

I am carving out time to write this message in the midst of major Passover preparations. For me it is about cleaning out the pantry, freezer and refrigerator, remembering my grandmother's attention to detail and my great-grandmother making gefilte fish from scratch. Trying to figure out meaningful ways to create tradition (and FUN) for my grandson and incorporating relevant issues into this year's Seder. I think about the many ways the world still needs redemption. It can be a despairing exercise, but if I let that paralyzing emotion overtake my "process", it will be difficult to muster the energy to do my part to build the better world we all envision. To me, this means Passover is also an important time for the Jewish people to think about hope. Fulfilling our hopes for redemption requires working together; the women in the Exodus story – the midwives, Miriam, Yocheved (Moses's mother) and Pharaoh's daughter – show us the power of joining together and saying "NO" to the current reality and "YES" to the possibility of a better future.

We have hired a wonderful Education Director whose love of children and Judaism will be a blessing to our community.

We did not want to rush into replacing our beloved Cantor Lianna so in the coming months leading up to the High Holy Days, we will be treated to lay leader volunteers helping Rabbi Neil to make our services spiritual and meaningful. May our ancient stories of liberation from Egypt sustain our hope in every generation.

B'shalom,
Meredith

Are we profoundly different from the rest of nature?

Are we the superior species?

Exploring why it is important to determine whether Judaism is environmental or ecological.

MAY 18th

“Fill the earth and subdue it.” (Genesis 1:28)

Is it even possible to subdue nature?

Exploring differing perspectives on the Jewish responsibility toward nature, especially when the needs of society clash with the preservation of nature.

JULY 20th

“God is in heaven above and on the earth below.” (Deuteronomy 4:39) - July

Where is God?

Is this world all there is to existence?

Exploring how theology itself is critical in helping to form a Jewish response to ecocrisis.

NOVEMBER 16th

“This is the fast that I desire” (Isaiah 58:6)

What is climate justice?

Exploring how the ecocrisis can only be effectively addressed through dismantling existing social norms.

HOCHBERG ACADEMY

The Hochberg Academy has been exploring the current situation in Israel with Rabbi Neil and Cantor Lianna.

We also had a terrific workshop by the Sky Center where we learned about their Natural Helpers program.

We honored our graduating seniors on April 26.

Our final meeting for the school year will be May 15, with our annual dinner at Il Vicino at 5pm.

The Hochberg Academy is open to all Jewish 8th - 12th graders in Northern New Mexico. We meet Wednesday evenings from 6-7:30pm and "we always have a snack".

Thanks to a generous grant from Stephen and Jane Hochberg, TBS teens have the opportunity to engage in sophisticated Jewish learning while also participating fully in our vibrant BSTY youth group.

Please contact Ellen Zieselman, Youth Director with any questions.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

On Sunday, April 14th, the TBS Religious School visited Las Vegas, New Mexico, to learn about the history of the oldest synagogue in New Mexico.

We visited Temple Montefiore, which was founded in 1884. The building was sold in the 1950s and was only recently bought back by the Jewish community for use as a synagogue, so this is the first time a group from TBS has been able to go to it.

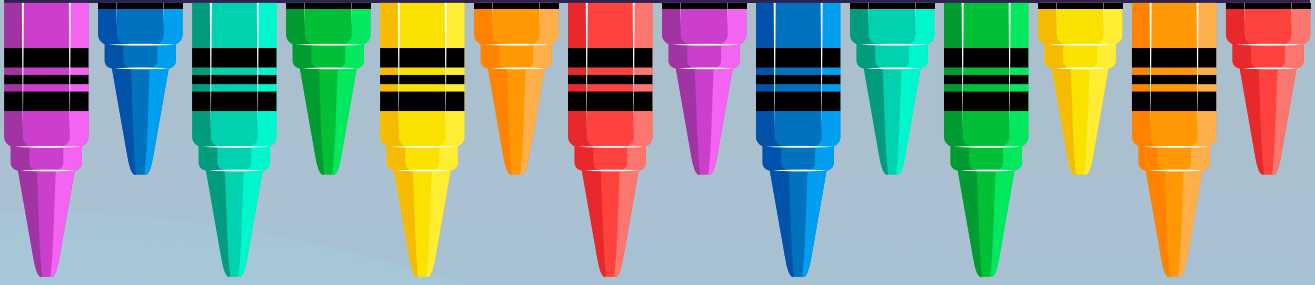

Then, we went to Montefiore Cemetery, the Jewish cemetery, which was founded in 1883. At Montefiore Cemetery, we buried some of our prayer books which were too damaged to be usable. Burying worn out Jewish books is called Genizah and is an ancient practice.

TBS thanks Nancy Terr & Lewis Terr for having us!

תודה

We are excited to share with you the latest news and updates from our school.

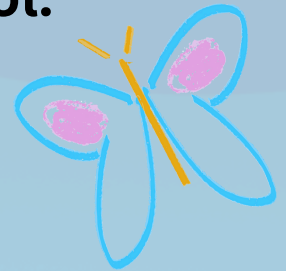

Upcoming events & closures:

May 6-10th Teacher Appreciation Week

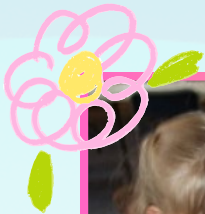

May 6-10th Director Amelia on Leave

B'NEI MITZVAH – LIAM MICHAELS-NORTHFIELD

We are so happy and proud that our Liam (Michaels-Northfield) is becoming Bar Mitzvah! He has been part of Temple Beth Shalom since he began Preschool; he started as a Religious School Student in kindergarten, and as a Hebrew School student in 4th grade.

Outgoing, social, kind, smart, warm, funny, and deeply sensitive by nature, Liam is everyone's friend. He is in 7th grade at Turquoise Trail Charter Middle School, where he is the Student Council President as well as a Community Ambassador for the Student Councils of the Santa Fe Area.

Liam is the beloved little brother of Benjamin, John, Julia and the Angel Eleri-Clare, and the much loved big brother of Larkin, Rebekah and Richard. He thinks being part of a big family keeps life interesting; there's always someone to talk to and to shoot hoops or play goalie with.

He loves school - especially health, math and science; sports - particularly soccer and basketball; and dance. He has been a serious ballet student since he announced, at age 2, that he MUST dance ballet (and jazz). The arts, in all of their myriad forms, have always been an important part of his life.

Liam loves spending time with his friends and family, and exploring in nature. He has an adventurous soul, and a deep love for this planet. He has been interested in ecology and preserving our fragile ecosystems since he was a tiny little human. To that end, part of his Tzedakah Project concerns the mission of the 4Ocean group, and their hard work at cleaning and sustaining the integrity of the earth's oceans. Two central passion projects for Liam are Youth Suicide Prevention and assuring access to Mental Health Services for all. He will be making donations, and volunteering time, to organizations providing services to youth in both areas.

Liam has been hard at work on his Bar Mitzvah studies, and has loved learning with Rabbi Neil and Cantor Lianna. He has been giving deep consideration and reflection to his Torah portion, Kedoshim, and he looks forward to sharing his thoughts.

He will be called to the Torah as Bar Mitzvah on May 11th.

B'NEI MITZVAH - BEATRICE UNGAR MCCULLOUGH

Please join us as Beatrice Ungar McCullough becomes a Bat Mitzvah on May 25th! Many of you have known Beatrice as one of the little kids running around during Friday Night Live services years ago, or as one of her teachers at TBS Preschool, Sunday School, Hebrew School &, more recently, with her amazing B'nai Mitzvah class.

Beatrice brings her sense of justice to everything she does, including her Torah portion, Behar. This year, in 7th grade at Santa Fe Prep & in combination with her torah study, she has grown into a self-confident, funny, kind, & determined person. As she commented recently, "Middle School changes you. Look at all of the things I've done!" Volleyball, new friends, personal growth & academic successes in all of her classes, along with a growing interest in science & languages, have been amazing parts of her 7th grade year.

She loves being the youngest cousin in a family that spans from Costa Rica to Hungary & interspersed in between, with her immediate Ungar & McCullough families and beloved dogs all living in Santa Fe. Having a family in so many places has also ignited her love of traveling (especially Europe) and studying languages.

Opera, drama, & storytelling are her favorite ways of spending hours in worlds of imagination reading, watching, writing stories or listening to music. Hanging out with friends, of course, is a highlight of her week. Beatrice loves the water & her swim team, Charger Aquatics, with whom she has been swimming for 6 years. As part of her love for water & the oceans, she is raising money to help the coral reefs through her Tzedakah project, with the Coral Restoration Foundation. This organization has halted and reversed coral reef decline in Key West along the Florida Reef Tract, returning more than 30,000 corals and restoring degraded coral reefs to thriving ecosystems.

Beatrice would like to thank the Temple Beth Shalom community, especially Rabbi Neil, Cantor Lianna, Aaron Wolf, Ellen Zieselman & her many teachers & friends for helping her along this journey & invite you to join her as she becomes a Bat Mitzvah on May 25th.

BOOK NOTES:

{Occasional book reviews by Library Committee Members}

Nothing Sacred: the Truth about Judaism, by Douglas Rushkoff
(Three Rivers Press, 2004)

I walked into the TBS library, and there was a book sitting on the table with a title that shocked and intrigued me. How dare he? Who is this guy anyway? Does this book even belong in a Jewish library? My mind was full of questions without even a trace of any answers. The only way for me to find resolution was to read it. That way I could ascertain for myself the book's value, get the author's perspective, and see if he has answers, or at least ideas, that could put me on an inquisitive and thoughtful path concerning my own Jewish beliefs. The beginning chapters were very disturbing to me, but as I kept reading, the story he told became very compelling. The "history" of the Jewish people and the evolution of our G-d was very educational. He wrote of the three cornerstones of Judaism – iconoclasm, monotheism, and social justice. Judaism was born out of a willingness to challenge our beliefs. Believing in one G-d for this contentious people was a big leap and took many years and many setbacks. However, once that belief was strongly established, G-d then receded from human affairs. It became the people's duty to care for one another, not just family but especially strangers. Scientific breakthroughs in the 1800's challenged our Creation and Sinai stories. Was the Torah written by G-d? What should we believe? Should we assimilate and become more like our neighbors? After the Holocaust, who among us still believes in G-d? We need Israel. Was it our reward for the supreme sacrifice? Should we shun intermarriage? Are we a race or a religion? What actions do we take to protect Judaism? Can we evolve and remain recognizable? So many paths before us, so many crises. David Rushkoff answered a lot of the questions I didn't know I had. I learned about a type of Judaism I had never heard of previously, Humanistic. He is a thoughtful, knowledgeable author.

In response to one of my questions above, does this book belong in a Jewish library, the answer is both yes and no. Yes, it should be part of our collection, and no, because it should spend more of its time in congregants' homes being enjoyed and pondered!

WELCOME NEW MEMBERS

Welcome New Temple Member Shari Cassutt!

Introducing new (returning) Temple member Shari Cassutt! Shari has returned to both TBS and Santa Fe after a 10 year hiatus while living in Simsbury, Connecticut. While there, she discovered her “inner New Englander.” However, she’s happy to be back home and to reconnect with the TBS community. Shari first joined TBS in 1985. Her two children, Brian and Jamie, became B’nai Mitzvah at TBS, while Shari served on various Temple committees. Shari, who grew up in Palm Springs California and graduated from UC Berkeley, taught kindergarten for Santa Fe Public Schools for more than 20 years. In 2007 she took a leave of absence and spent the year teaching at an international preschool in Beijing, China. It was in Beijing that she met her partner Dick Mullen. Dick was working for the Olympic Broadcast Company during the 2008 Games. Shari returned to Santa Fe and resumed teaching, and eventually Dick joined her in New Mexico. When an opportunity arose to relocate to Connecticut the two of them took off to explore east coast living. Shari is the grandmother of three boys.

Oliver Cassutt-Sanchez lives in Santa Fe with his mother, City Councilwoman Jamie Cassutt. Oliver’s father, chiropractor Bobby Sanchez, also lives in Santa Fe. Grandsons Kai and Asher Cassutt live in Southern California with their parents Brian, an executive with a solar energy company, and Hannah, a stay-at-home mother. Shari enjoys dabbling in mixed media art and writing. She is an avid home cook. She and Dick love to throw a party. Together they look forward to international travel, particularly of the “slow, stay in one place awhile” kind.

Welcome back to TBS Shari!

WELCOME NEW MEMBERS

Welcome New Temple Member Diane Leffler!

Introducing new Temple member Diane Leffler! Diane made Santa Fe her home 20 years ago, after living in a number of places, including the Washington, D.C. area, Modi'in, Israel, and Portland, Maine. Diane is a certified interventional radiology coder, working for Fresenius Vascular Care. As an IR coder, Diane performs technical and complex analysis of medical radiologic imaging reports for research, treatment, reimbursement and tracking. Diane has gained a variety of special experiences over the years. She went to a French culinary school in Bethesda, Maryland and used her skills in various D.C. area restaurants. While spending a year in Israel, she worked on a Moshav on a farm that grew flowers for flower shops. And here in Santa Fe, for many years she worked for the Farmers Market by operating a booth to sell products for the benefit of the Market. Diane is also a long-time volunteer at Pete's Place and is committed to continue her weekly shifts there, providing services to those in need.

Diane loves Santa Fe and is an avid hiker.

She looks forward to becoming involved in the Temple community!

WELCOME NEW MEMBERS

Welcome New Members Rita and Charles Levin!

Introducing new Temple members Rita and Chuck Levin! In 2022, Rita and Chuck decided they were ready for a change from their hectic 45 years living in Los Angeles. With previous visits to Santa Fe, the lure of a beautiful city, its unique culture and wide range of attractions sold them on making the move. The Levins still make regular visits to L.A. to visit their close family. Their daughter Laura and her husband David Gottlieb have teen daughters, Lilly and Sophie. Their son Steven is married to Amy and is raising their recently Bat Mitzvahed daughter, Stella, and her little brother, Samuel. Rita is a talented artist and loves the Santa Fe art scene. She enjoys painting and is taking weekly ceramics instruction from a noted Santa Fe ceramicist. Rita is a Gold Life Master bridge player and enjoys playing in regional and national bridge tournaments. Chuck was a 45-year executive in the toy industry. His family toy distribution business in Cincinnati was acquired in the 1970s by a national conglomerate which transferred him to Los Angeles to manage their toy division. Over the succeeding years, he also headed a toy manufacturer and toy representative firm. Chuck actively works on behalf of Israel's premier science, technology and medical university, Technion. He served on the Technion International Board of Governors, was President of the Los Angeles chapter of the American Technion Society, and is currently a board member of the ATS. Chuck also regularly plays bridge and golf. The Levin's enjoy the area's many museums, art shows and their respective book clubs. They love travel and have traveled extensively throughout the world. Chuck and Rita are looking forward to being members of Temple Beth Shalom, making new friends and partaking in the Temple's wide range of activities!
